

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A new and unique method of gambling on horse races uses a predetermined number of races for the game. Preferably, the number of races in the game is significantly lower than the number of races in the racing event. The player then selects which races in the event to use for the game, selects which horses the player believes will win his selected races and places a bet on those horses. The races that the player uses for the game are not determined by the racetrack operators and need not be in consecutive order. Therefore, the player can play again if his selected winner loses. The player may continue to play the game so long as there are equal to or more than the predetermined number of races remaining. Winning players can be paid in a variety of ways and payments can be broken down to pay players whose selections all won and players whose selection did not all win.
